

WOMEN MET ON ELECTION DAY

AND SIGNED BECAUSE THEY COULD NOT VOTE.

"We Women are Too Peaceful," said one. "Another told of the 'Tyranny of Men and Degradation of Disfranchisement'—Miss Anthony Hopes to Vote."

Many woman suffrage enthusiasts of New York and other parts of the country held a meeting at the Hotel Majestic yesterday afternoon, "in memory of Elizabeth Cady Stanton," the programme said, but her name was mentioned only twice during the meeting, once by Mrs. Catt and later by Miss Susan B. Anthony. Most of the speakers entered a protest against "the tyranny, the ignorance and the corruption of mankind," meaning men.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, in a gorgeously cut velvet gown, presided. Miss Harriet May Mills, organizer of the New York State Woman's Suffrage Association, spoke on "Taxation Without Representation," and referred in deep contralto tones to "the tyranny of men and the degradation of disfranchisement."

Mr. William C. Cullen, who said Miss Mills, vigorously wishing her long black net train, "We just talk instead of fight."

Miss Alice Stone Blackwell replied to the question on the programme, "Does Intelligence Count?" by the announcement that she was "fretting and fuming, and had been doing so all day to go out and cast a vote."

She further declared that "one ignorant man has more influence in the country than all the intelligent women in it."

Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton was down to speak on "The World Moves," which she did by saying that she came from Ohio, "where Presidents are born, and which is more like Boston than Boston itself—because Boston is nearly all Irish."

She said that out West people were told that New Yorkers love money better than anything else in the world, after which she announced that she had just received $10,000 for the National League of Women Suffragists from Dr. Cornelia Hussey of New Jersey.

Mrs. Catt announced that the "orator" of the league, the Rev. Anna H. Shaw, would conduct a question box. To the question, "Would not suffrage for women and the cultured women in the great minority?" she replied.

"That depends upon what you call culture. To many New Yorkers culture is clothes, culture is a house, culture is progressive whist. I have found as much culture in a back alley as in many drawing rooms."

She defined conservatism as "one-third ignorance, one-third prejudice, and one-third laziness." Asked what she thought of Dr. Abbott's article in the Atlantic Monthly on "Women's Rights," she said she thought of the article which she did not read, "because it was so far away."

"Women are getting to have their own way," said the Rev. Anna. "In one State they have recently been allowed actually to own their clothes. Oh, it isn't nearly so bad to be married as it used to be."

Miss Susan B. Anthony was the last speaker. When she took the stage, she said she was glad to see so many women present and several who carried flags in the rear of the room lowered them. Miss Anthony related the incident of the teachers' convention held in this State where a woman spoke—and she was the woman.

Miss Anthony spoke in glowing terms of Elizabeth Cady Stanton, who she said had been the dearest friend of her youth and later years.

"The world has progressed," said Miss Anthony. "Women are educated, they are wage earners, they are equal competitors of men. I only long to live to the day when I shall see every woman manly enough to vote, and that I may myself cast a vote for President."

CROWD ATTACKS A NEGRO.

He is Accused of Having Shot and Seriously Wounded a Boy.

Arthur Patterson, 25 years old, a negro, living at 206 West Sixty-first street, was arraigned yesterday in the West Side police court charged with shooting Jeremiah Healy, 16 years old, of 778 Third avenue. According to the police, Thomas Brady of the West Sixty-eighth street station, the Healy boy was playing at Sixtieth street and Amsterdam avenue at noon, when the negro approached, and for no known reason drew a revolver and fired five shots at the boy.

One of the bullets hit the Healy boy in the groin. He was taken to Roosevelt Hospital, where it was said that he was in a critical condition. The policeman says that the negro ran to his home, then went to the roof, came back down to the street through an adjoining house and ran back to Amsterdam avenue.

There an angry crowd got him, threw him down and was beating him unmercifully when Policeman Brady rescued him and took him to the station. The policeman said that he thought that the crowd would have killed the negro if he hadn't appeared.

In court the negro said that he was afraid for his life and then told Magistrate Flammery that he had nothing to do with the shooting. He said that he was in a restaurant near by when he heard shots and that when he went out into the street to see what had happened, the crowd pounced on him.

He was held without bail for further examination.

RUSSIA SOUNDING THE POWERS.

M. Lansdorff's Discussions With Other Foreign Ministers Explained.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN. PARIS, Nov. 3.—A despatch from Darmstadt to the Echo de Paris gives an interview obtained by the correspondent with M. Savinsky, secretary to Count Lansdorff, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs.

M. Savinsky said it was quite true that the Russian Minister had felt it to be necessary to discuss with M. Delcasse, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, questions which may be of interest to the two allied Powers as he had previously thought it advisable to confer with Count Goluchowski, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, and as he would in a few days confer with Count von Buelow, the German Imperial Chancellor. He added that there was a perfect agreement on all questions between France and Russia.

In conclusion M. Savinsky said: "I can assure you that the Japanese and Russian governments are animated by a sincere desire to arrive at a pacific settlement of the question in the Far East. I am convinced that we shall find a modus vivendi of a nature to satisfy both parties."

THE BENBOW AIRSHIP SAILS.

IT ROSE IN THE AIR TO A HEIGHT OF 75 FEET.

While Being Manoeuvred in Many Directions One of the Spars Broke, Necessitating a Postponement of the Tests Until To-day—To Make a Long Trip.

UTICA, Nov. 3.—The trial of the airship designed by T. C. Benbow, a ranchman from Caribou county, Mont., had its initial test late this afternoon at the balloon farm of Prof. Carl Myers, Frankfurt, N. Y., ten miles east of this city. It may be fairly stated without exaggeration that the trial was eminently successful, and Mr. Benbow is confident that he will be a strong competitor for the $100,000 prize at the St. Louis exposition, next summer.

The trial of the airship had been set for 3 o'clock this afternoon, but was unavoidably delayed until 5:30 o'clock. At that hour Mr. Benbow entered the car of his ship, which was anchored to the ground, and immediately set the engine in motion. The ship rose majestically in the air to a height of seventy-five feet, balancing perfectly in many directions, it responding promptly to his every touch. While turning, however, one of the spars broke, necessitating the discontinuance of the trial, as the fractured part could not be repaired before darkness.

Several thousand persons witnessed the test and with inventor Benbow's success convinced that the ship solves to a great extent the problem of aerial navigation. The gas bag section of the airship is seventy-four feet in length and holds 14,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas. The purpose of the bag is to sustain and balance the weight of the ship. The lifting power of the ship is produced by setting the fans in motion, and the same controlling the motion of the ship is so constructed that they close at the moment of rest, thus preventing the ship from being blown away by the wind.

The power for operating the fans and incidentally navigating the ship is furnished by two double cylinder gasoline engines, the combined weight of which is 150 pounds. The diameter of the cylinders is 3 inches, with a 3-inch stroke. An electric sparkler is used for lighting. All of the engine and the cylinders is constructed of aluminum. The car of the ship is suspended by cable and hangs directly from the centre.

In the test the ship sailed in a downward motion of the paddles and descended by a reverse motion.

This airship is an improved design over a ship Benbow made twelve years ago. He will continue the test to-morrow, and announces that he expects to make a trip to this city in his ship.

Had Killed Two Negroes and Wounded Two Others With an Axe.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 3.—Joseph Craddock, a negro, was lynched yesterday on the S. J. Smith plantation in Bossier parish by a mob of negroes after a series of crimes in which two other negroes were killed by him and two others were wounded.

Craddock was a cotton picker and horse a bad reputation, having recently been run out of the town of Poole for attempted murder. No explanation is given of his recent murders, as there are no witnesses of his crime able to speak intelligently. He killed or disabled all of them.

According to one account, he first killed Wesley Chambers with an axe, attacking him without a word of warning and severing the head from the body. Then he killed Chambers' wife, Amanda, who saw the crime, he severely wounded her. He then attacked Tola Washington, who came to her assistance, cutting his skull open with the axe. Mercer Chambers, brother of his victim, was next assaulted and severely cut with the axe.

Craddock fled and was found shortly after, playing cards with a gang of negroes at Taylorville. Some 300 negroes from the Smith plantation gathered around the white men who had arrested the murderer. They demanded that he be surrendered to them and announced their purpose to burn him at the stake. The whites would not permit that and he was hanged.

DOGS HOLD COURT IN GARDEN.

LADIES' KENNEL ASSOCIATION SHOW OPENS SUCCESSFULLY.

Chinese and Esquimaux Specimens Among the Exhibits—Richard Croker, Jr., Makes His Bow as a Judge of Bulldogs—Balmoral Baron, a Prince of Colliers.

Several hundred dogs are holding court at the Madison Square Garden this week. It is the third annual bench show of the Ladies' Kennel Association of America, and those who take an interest in the dogs of the breed are on exhibition there. There are big dogs and little dogs, dogs with long, shaggy hair and dogs whose coats are smooth and sleek. There are lean dogs and fat dogs, dogs with coats that are hard brush, and dogs with coats that are soft and silky. There are pretty dogs and ugly dogs, but what constitutes a pretty dog is something that fanciers will argue about till doomsday and that they do not seem to agree, so the visitor to the show will have to settle which is the pretty dog. There are dogs that are useful and dogs that are useless; in short, there are all sorts of dogs, and the visitor to the show will be hard to please if there is not one or more in the exhibition that will please him.

The former shows of the Ladies' Kennel Association have been held later in the season, and dogs are usually scarce from any exhibitions they have not been as well patronized as was expected. This year the show almost starts the circuit, and as yesterday was a holiday and the attendance was very large, the show will have to make up a deficit this year.

There are, as usual, many small dogs, and these are carefully screened from any draughts in glass boxes and delicately curtained cages. These attracted much attention yesterday from the visitors to the Garden. One which is in the miscellaneous class is a small dog, a Chinese pug, named "The Dog of the Garden." This dog is owned by Mrs. Decker, the wife of the surgeon of the battleship Alabama, which is now at the navy yard. Tai Tai's number is 1144. This would not be so strange if the dog were a Chinese pug, but the dog from the Alabama has charge of the animal.

In this same class is an Esquimaux dog which was brought from Greenland by Commander Peary, the Arctic explorer, commander of the Albatross, and the dog is named "The Dog of the Arctic."
